Anthem of Dolorous Doubt Crowds "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" Out of First Place.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

CHICAGO, June 6.—"Nobody knows" as a convention anthem has crowded "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" out of popularity. Candidates, managers, committee-men and delegates are swimming in a sea of doubt today, and for the first time in thirty years the Sunday before a G. O. P. national convention found the old-timers unable to get a real line on the candidate who would land on the ticket.

POLITICAL DERBY WINNER NEVER WAS SO UNCERTAIN IN ALL PARTY HISTORY

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

CHICAGO, June 6.—This little fuss over picking out a President for the United States has finally shaken itself down to this: It's like a lot of shipwrecked men clinging to a plank. Pretty soon, the weakest ones will have to hand over their life preservers to the comrades they love the best, and slip overboard into the cold depths of the slimy deep.

And the Presidential candidates all are lovingly hinting to each other that it would be a great time to slip right now, and "Don't forget me, Al, when you come to give away your life preserver."

Doheny is Dark Horse for Vice-Presidency on Democratic Ticket.

DEMOCRATS MAY NAME ANGELENO

Party Leaders Seriously Consider Doheny for Ticket.

Los Angeles Oil Magnate Has a Powerful Following.

Believed His Name Will Lend Weight to Campaign.

BY MEREDITH RICHARDS.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—As Virginia has been long known as the "mother of Presidents," so it is coming to be a fact that, in this campaign at least, the nation is looking to California for a big share of the proposed nominees of both parties.

There's Hoover, who looks more and more like the Republican nominee; Johnson, who seems to be approaching the nomination in the proverbial crab-like fashion; McAdoo, a recent Californian by adoption, and now comes Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, looking as a dark horse as Vice-Presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket.

Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, delegate to the Democratic convention in San Francisco, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and a leader in Missouri Democratic politics, while in St. Louis yesterday, stated that though the delegates from Missouri are instructed to vote for Ambassador David R. Francis as President, the name of Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles has been persistently mentioned in Washington for that office. Mr. Shannon said:

"Mr. Doheny, while a resident of California, and one of California's 'big four' to the convention, is as much a part of the business and social life of New York and Washington as he is of his own state."

"Should anyone ask who Doheny is, the reply would be that he is the discoverer of both the California and Tampico oil fields, the biggest producer today of crude petroleum in the world, and the owner of one of the largest fleets of commercial vessels on the seas."

"But he is more than that. His father was a pioneer educator in the early history of Wisconsin, in which State his family has lived since 1840. His family was poor. Young Doheny made his name as a prospector for precious metals when he was only 17."

"With pick and shovel he prospected in all of the western mineral territory of the country with huge success. When the price of silver rose, a score or so of acres completely wiped out his huge fortune. He immediately started on a new campaign with the buoyancy of a lad. In less than a year he had won his present incomparable share in the world of productive enterprise and international affairs."

"He is the one man in the United States in big business who has never had a strike. He exemplifies the philosophy of organized labor when a laborer himself and has faithfully followed it in practice throughout his entire business career."

"Practically all of his associates in the vast enterprises which he heads started with him on the same day of the ladder of industry. He dug his first oil well with his own hands. His benevolence, modesty and generosity, have been boundless. His contributions to every cause evoking human sympathy or the maintenance of justice and fair conditions of life have been unstinted."

"GAVE FLEET FOR WAR." "When the war came on, his only son enlisted in the navy and came out a captain. During the war Doheny himself constantly in Washington, probably at a greater individual financial sacrifice than any other citizen of the nation. He turned over practically his whole fleet of ships to the service of the nation."

"A Californian in Washington who knows him intimately said to me yesterday: 'The President's campaign with Doheny on the ticket would doubtless develop the fact that during the war he was one of the world's most useful citizens. He is a man of marvelous energy and great personal charm. As a contracting engineer, he has broadened his mind, and is the peer of any man living; an international trade expert who ranks with the highest.'"

"TYPICAL THE WEST." "In his early life he studied law and was admitted to the bar of New Mexico. His marked success in that territory. He absolutely typifies the spirit of the pioneer West."

REPUBLICAN GAVEL OF HISTORIC WOOD.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—With the departure of Mayor J. Hampton Moore for Chicago today it became known that the Republican National Convention will be opened in order with a gavel from a rather of Independence Hall. The Mayor carried the gavel in his handbag.

and still is a younger man than Woodrow Wilson, having just turned 69.

"A lawyer of parts, explorer, inventor, engineer and business genius, history may record him as the greatest business and industrial organizer of his day. He is also a man of character, so appealingly human as to fire the imagination of the youth of the land as well as to inspire the emulation of its mature men and women."

PREDICTS SURPRISES. "I predict that both big party conventions will be full of surprises. It is easily within the realm of probability that this many-sided man, now talked of for Vice-President, will easily win the nomination at the San Francisco convention as its nominee for President of the United States."

"He would make a great pilot for our ship of state on the rocky voyage of post-war reconstruction, with its mighty foreign and domestic possibilities."

There was a general feeling that little trouble would be encountered in bringing an agreement on the Mexico plank. The declaration issued at Washington by Senator Lodge, who arrived today, predicted that an agreement between the various groups would be reached.

In that case, the plank would declare that recognition of the new regime in Mexico City should be withheld until certain conditions had been met. There also would be an attack on President Wilson's policy and a demand for a statement of the necessity of protecting American rights. Two former members of the Senate, Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, and Henry Lane Wilson of Indiana, were here, with other leaders on the subject.

Ball & Co., the firm handling most of the large betting commissions relative to the chances of the candidates on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, issued the following post odds on the leading candidates of both parties.

HIP-POCKET RAID IS MADE ON CONVENTION DELEGATES.

CHICAGO, June 6.—After taking the most elaborate precautions against a possible drouth in crossing the great American desert, the Massachusetts delegation narrowly escaped a complete loss of their pocket "biker" en route to the convention today.

When the special train carrying the delegation reached Detroit a flock of seagulls swooped down upon it. A thorough raid was made and suit cases followed. Every passenger was forced to submit to search and give up his wet possessions.

Indignant protests failed to make a dent in the searchers' determination. Finally members of the delegation appealed over the heads of the deputy prohibition officers to their chief. After many plaintive pleas of the dangers of snake bites and the chief yielded and ordered the return of an amount sufficient for the delegation's medicinal needs.

The Massachusetts delegation reached the city about two hours late with most of its "biker" and considerable wrath. It is reported the delegation is stronger than ever for a plank liberalizing the Volstead Act.

OUTSTRIPS ALL CITIES.

New York, With Population of 5,621,151, World's Greatest Metropolis.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NEW YORK, June 6.—One hundred years ago New York in population was something like the present city of Albany, with a population of little more than 100,000. The city which since has grown to be probably the largest in the world did not pass the one million mark until 1830, when the first census was taken. Today it has a population of 5,621,151.

In 1900, with annexation of Brooklyn and the incorporation of the city of New York, the population was 3,437,252. The upward march was pronounced after that, with the four million mark left behind in less than five years. By 1910, the population was 4,768,823, and by 1915 it had reached 5,151,151.

In the population estimated in 1919, only one State in the United States was larger than New York City—Pennsylvania, with a population of 5,336,991. The Dominion of Canada's 1910 population was not so large as that of New York City in 1920, while only two South American countries, Brazil and Argentina, have as many people.

Outside of London, no one other city in the world has a larger population as New York, which has nearly as many people as Paris, Berlin and Vienna combined. The metropolitan district of New York represents the most concentrated grouping of people in the world.

LABOR PARTY IS AIM OF UNIONS.

Agitation in American Federation Back of Latest Move.

Boosters for New Organization Seek "Ideal Platform."

Conservatives Claim Gompers Will Lose Grip.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

MONTREAL, June 6.—Efforts will be made to have the American Federation of Labor, which opens its annual convention here tomorrow, lay the foundation for the establishment of an American labor party.

They announced plans to launch a fight for the appointment of a special committee to draft a "platform," during the next two months, and submit it at the 1921 convention as the basis for a new political party.

"We realize that our opportunity for a labor party has passed for the time being," said J. P. Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., "but we want to prepare for the future. Labor has been the loser by the new two long delay in the direction of a political organization. We are here to sponsor a third party. If our plan is carried out there will be an American labor party within two years."

Conservatives claim Gompers will lose grip. The movement is being supported by delegates from the Metal Trades Council of the Pacific Coast and a number of representatives of other labor organizations. The A. F. of L. leaders refused to comment on the plan, except that they did not believe it "would get far."

The small increase in the growth of the city of New York during the past year, and the heavy emigration of foreign-born residents, are factors in the almost complete stagnation during the war of immigration and to the heavy emigration of foreign-born residents.

Boston's population is 747,923, an increase of 17,358, or 2.3 per cent over 1910. The city's population in 1910 was 730,565. The population of New York City in 1910 was 4,768,823, and by 1915 it had reached 5,151,151.

City Awaits Momentous Doings of the Week, Says Cobb, as He Strolls About Looking for Something Exciting to Write About; Notables Walk Streets Unnoticed.

BY IRVIN S. COBB.
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
CHICAGO, June 6.—At the hour of filing this dispatch a Sabbath calm lies upon peaceful Chicago. Even the arrival of our party from New York, including in its personnel such notables as Bud Fisher, his Lardner, Jimmy Montague and the mysterious unknown with the gold-mounted toothpick, who would not rest a million on anything and who did succeed in getting $500,000 something after the train left Cleveland, apparently created no great excitement.

NO "GOOS" TO BE FOUND.
But being consoled as I am by the reflection that things will be vastly different back in New York when I go there next week after the convention has adjourned, I have been strolling about town and have just returned to my chamber to record these words. In an hour's walk I did not run into a single authentic goose. The sun shined in cool clouds in the West, the streets were filled with people upon streets sparsely filled with people.

GENEVA, June 6.—The eighth congress of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance was opened this morning with a sermon delivered in Geneva Cathedral by Miss Maud Rothen, up to a short time ago, pastor of the city temple in London. Grape-Nuts is rich in the solid meaty values of wheat and malted barley, and has a substantial amount of sugar.
This sugar is not added in making but is developed from these grains by processing and long baking.
This decreases your sugar requirements, for the average cereal needs sugar for greatest palatability. Grape-Nuts needs none.
Bear this in mind when you order your cereal and ask for Grape-Nuts.

Do All Sick and Ailing Folks Have SPINAL DISPLACEMENTS?
Invariably, yes, 95 per cent of all ailments, whether chronic or acute, is caused by one or more of the bones of the spine being out of their normal positions. This abnormal position of the vertebrae (spinal displacements) produce "pressure" upon the delicate nerves that feed the different organs and parts of the body.
The Science of Chiropractic will do two things. First, the cause of disease (spinal displacements) can be accurately reproduced through X-Ray photography. If this spinal photograph proves incorrect, that a displacement is not found, a standing offer of $100.00 will be given. This offer is to any man, woman or child suffering with bodily ailments. Second: following a correction of the displacements, Nature frees the body of its aches and pains. Expert adjustments will accomplish this very thing. Make your appointment today. Bill Piercy Tosses One-Hit Contest in P.M.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The Oakland Athletics and the Detroit Tigers played the first of two games today at the Oakland Coliseum. The Athletics won the first game, 5 to 4, in a very satisfactory week for the champions. In the morning at Oakland, big Dell Baker, a soft game to pitch and to win, 9-4. In the afternoon, Bill Piercy and Buzz Arlett, opposed each other on this side, and Bill took the decision, 2-1, although he nearly tossed away the victory himself.

In the morning at Oakland quite a big crowd turned out to see the Oaks. The fans over there used to cheer for them, and stood ready to do battle for them, but they seem to have soured completely on them now, and even good old honest Hack Miller was razzed. There was no comparison between the pitching of Piercy and Arlett this afternoon, but at that Bill had a narrow squeak. Bill allowed one hit, while Buzz was nibbled for eleven hard ones, yet the score was 2-1, and Piercy nearly spilled the beans in the seventh inning, when the Oaks got their only score.

BECAME CARELESS.

Bill had the Oaks swinging so mildly that he got careless and walked Lane to open the seventh, his first pass. Then he brushed the batting of Dennis White with a fast one and Dennis trotted to first. With Babe Barton playing away off the bag, Piercy suddenly wheeled in his quick way and threw to first base. The ball sailed out into right field and Lane scored, while White counted to third. Then Bill settled down and pitched himself out of a hole and did not allow White to stir off third base.

Bill walked Speltman to open the eighth, but he then calmly struck out the next three men and left the pitcher stranded. He and the game by striking out Cooper. Four double plays were lifelines for Buzz Arlett, for he was in trouble most of the time in the early innings. Line drives were converted into double plays, and killed off the Tigers in stocks.

old—or rather, though

do not get old otherwise. I stay young, according to R. Weitzmiller, physical director of the West Side Y.M.C.A. He says that most people grow old because they cease doing young things. "I stay young," said the doctor, "because I play; he doesn't because he is young. He is old because of his own actions. He ceases to do all things after thirty years of age because the children are old. He, as a parent, has already 'passed' and is thought to be Oerstedized. All that is left for the family is to be Oerstedized by the next generation."

The construction of the instrument consists of a pocket container in which is placed all quantity of granules through which the vibrations are to be passed, and the difficulty with many has been that its fall has not been secured by the fact that these particles are packed in and are loose to the moisture of the air. To remedy this defect the inventors have made a container in which each individual grain of carbon is in a cell by itself so that no two grains can come in contact with one another, being in contact with the walls of the cell and the walls of the instrument. The People and Their Daily Troubles

OUR MYSTERIOUS SELVES

BY JANE DIXON.

Fokine, father of the Ballet Russe, has a favorite pupil.

This favorite pupil is the maestro's wife, Mima Fokina, and the options of all he holds highest in the difficult art of the dance.

One evening not long ago I watched the elephantine efforts of a really gifted man who was engaged in the hazardous task of fox-trotting a lovely lady through the mazes of an American jazz tune.

It was a rather pathetic spectacle. Here was a superb dancer, whose decisions shaded the destiny of nations, prancing and perspiring and bringing himself to the brink of apoplexy over a problem in rhythm as simple as the merest child could manage it gracefully and with dispatch.

I happened to know this unhappy struggler had suffered through an entire course of dancing lessons at the school of one who was supposed to imbue a wooden man with the poetry of motion. Yet I realized that to this particular pupil the League of Nations was easy in comparison with the tangled skein of a waltz.

A fact was impressed upon me as never before—either we dance or we do not.

Mima Fokina, in whose lithe limbs and graceful body flow all the fire and air and rippling waters of the dance, confirmed this conviction.

It was after one of those tempestuous performances at the Metropolitan Opera when Fokine and Fokina, two jewels of the Imperial School of Dance, one of the most sacred of Russia's art institutions, were shattered by the hand of the Bolshevik, had glittered and shimmered to the breathless wonder of an unbelieving audience.

The flash of physical exertion, the flash of spiritual inspiration, intensified the always vivid tone of the dancer's personality. All about Fokina blizzards of the blarney waves of the "Seven Veils." She pushed them back and launched eagerly into a subject very close to her heart.

"Each of us," said the gifted Russian, "is born with something within us which it is our duty to give to the world."

"With one it might be a thrilling message of religion, with another a master picture, with still another a song to melt the soul. Then there are those who may find their gift in humbler spheres, where they become as great a factor for good as do the more exalted ones."

"The great thing, the most important thing in life is to discover your particular gift."

The brilliant dark eyes of the dancer softened to sadness.

"I know of so many mistle," she sighed, "who have deliberately taken a closed road and have never again come back to the success highway. We have a gift for making hate and we insist on writing plays. Instinct points us toward twinkling toes and we insist upon singing songs. We hold ourselves stronger than the fate which fashions our ends."

"It is impossible, for instance, to be a great dancer unless you are born with a genius for the dance. No person is a fine artist who cannot make others feel. To make others feel it is necessary that you yourself feel. This can happen only when you love the thing you are doing absolutely and sincerely, better than anything else in the world—when you would be miserable without it."

"And cultivation," I asked, "does it enter into the equation?"

"Most certainly," was the reply. "The wild rose is lovely, but feeling the rose of cultivation is fragrant and lasting."

"Technique and fitness can be developed, but no dancer who does not truly love her art so that it absorbs her very heart and soul can ever move an audience to either tears or smiles, even though she may be lighter than a feather, more beautiful than a painter's dream, the mistress of all there is in technique."

Mima Fokina believes we are apprised of our birthrights before we emerge from the carefree age of childhood.

"It seems to me I always have known my destiny was to dance," she declared. "Certainly he far back as memory can reach I have been consumed with love of it. There never was any question about my life work. My parents were in full accord with my desires in this direction. I think they felt the necessity for it as much as I did myself."

"At the age of twelve they gave me to the Imperial Ballet School in Petrograd. In my country it is a real gift. One enters the school, she is practically lost to her home. Her entire life is devoted to the dance."

"The master artist in the school at this time was a young teacher by the name of Polakoff. It was Fokine who composed the dance which delighted the difficult lords and ladies of the Imperial Court. Both the master and the pupil were of the same caliber. Fokine held the ballet above all other arts, as indeed it has always been held in Russia. From the first Fokine had faith in my ability to reach the heights to which he aspired. He taught me ceaselessly, with infinite care and patience. It was a long and tortuous road, yet I loved every step of the way. At last, on my sixteenth birthday, he felt the goal was reached. I was graduated into the corps de ballet."

"Another love had grown along with my birthright, and we were married. Shortly thereafter my husband took the Ballet Russe to Paris. It was an event the pleasure-mad, beauty-worshipping city will never forget. The Ballet Russe marks the highest point ever reached in the history of the art of dancing."

"The speaker rose as if she returned with reluctance from poppy-scented pages of the past, and trailed off into a misty laugh as if to relieve the tenseness of her emotion."

"Of course," she continued, "if you are among those who regard art as a means of gratifying personal vanity, you may safely take up any line without endangering the prestige of any real artist. There are always a certain number of persons who will applaud a dancer, because she can pose on her toes for a considerable period, or higher than any other dancer. If it appears to you as seeking, the task should be easy."

"If, on the other hand, you are of those who regard art as an influence for good in the world, yours will be another mission. You will dance to make those who see happy, to move the cycle to tears, to open up a new world for those whose eyes have been shut to beauty."

"Probably the most enthusiastic reception my husband and I have received in America was at our latest appearance at the Metropolitan. Yet all applause and flowers and accolades were of little avail. The shining face of a young girl who came back stage to me after the performance, said she had been downcast and disheartened for several weeks, but that after our pantomime dance, 'Carnegie,' her sadness had dropped from her like a cloak. This, to me, is fulfilling the real mission of all art."

Mima Fokina has a tiny son who dances like a wind-tossed autumn leaf. He has not been taught to dance, this mite of mingled nations. He is a pure birth gift. He places the seal upon Mima Fokina's assurance—true talent, the soaring wings of art are born, not made."

You Wouldn't Want to Wear False Teeth, Would You?

Sound, beautiful teeth in themselves are no guarantee that the need of false teeth won't come later in life, unless "Acid-Mouth" is checked.

Mouth acids are comparatively mild, yet they are very persistent. In time they weaken the hardest enamel, and force cavities through which germs enter and destroy the soft interior pulp.

95 in every 100 persons are said to have "Acid-Mouth," and all of us should be on our guard against it.

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

Counteracts "Acid-Mouth"

The best safeguard is to use Pebeco Tooth Paste regularly. Peb co does counteract harmful mouth acids, and at the same time helps to whiten and brighten the teeth, benefits the gums, and promotes the health of the whole mouth.

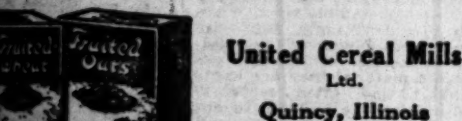

Brush your teeth twice a day with Pebeco and have your teeth examined twice a year by your dentist.

WESTLAKE METHODIST.

Gathered from every part of the American republic men and women will convene as citizens, representing the political parties of our national life, this month in the cities of Chicago and San Francisco.

It is pertinent that we ask the question, what are the standards which will be used to measure the men who are to be selected as the standard bearers of these great political parties?

It will be an easy matter to answer that question as it relates to politics, for the various conventions will announce their platforms, but what of the men?

The day has long since past when the individual seeking nomination for public office of any kind can afford to ignore the moral qualities of character. American people are awake as never before to the potency of real righteousness as fashioned into human lives. Too long have we had standards of expediency, which is just another word for "tampering with principles."

Men have had their ears all around to find out what "popular demands" were, irrespective of what righteousness demands. That day has gone. The man with his ear to the ground may be a politician, he can never be an American leader.

It is not impossible to yoke the American people to any political party that does not come out with an unquestioned standard of right as distinguished from party loyalty. Gone forever is the day when a free people will consent to bow down to political bosses of any party, whose standards are lower than the righteousness which governs a nation.

DR. HERBERT BOOTH SMITH.

IMMANUEL PRESBYTERIAN.

"What is Eternal Life?" The expression occurs more than forty times in the New Testament, and one would suppose that from forty different angles it would be glimpsed clearly, yet it is a common mistake to confuse eternal life with immortality. If, after all, the trouble of getting through this life we must go on to a heaven of eternal monotony, most of us would derive comfort from the doctrine of annihilation, but the Christian has something better. Both the Old and New Testaments recognize that man is a three-fold being, composed of body, soul and spirit for which there are three corresponding Greek words, although the poverty of the English language admits of but one word: "Life." These Greek words recognize life as on three separate planes, the lowest, closely related to the animal nature, the next meaning the immortality of the soul (taught long before Jesus, by the Greeks), and finally the spiritual life, which Christ came to teach. Eternal life, therefore, according to the definition of Jesus, means not one moving into another state of existence, but moving up into the smile of God at the same time.

Christ's patron saint is not Methuselah; he wants more than horizontal blessedness; his idea of heaven is bigger than an eternal merry-go-round of treadmill years; he yearns beyond the skyline; he wants the eternal life which makes living on the level of Jesus; the spiritual life of Christ begotten in the soul by the power of the Holy Spirit of God. "Eternal life," as the Greeks taught, is the heritage of the race, because all life is ageless; we shall live after death, because we live now; but eternal life such as Jesus taught, makes a clear distinction between existence and life. Existence is physical, "meat, malt and mattress," but life is spiritual, a blessed fellowship with God Himself, even as the branch abides in and lives by the parent-vine.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

"Most men live their lives as though they were bodies rather than souls. We are ever tunc in the chase for things and for place, forgetting that a man's life consists not in the abundance of the things on which he may lay claim. "Now and then the assurance greets us that the only thing which can free the world from the strangling grip of vivid materialism is a awakening and reawakening of spiritual faculties. The assurance is listened to with approval, because dissatisfaction and unrest is life's great burden, and there is nothing in a material, matter-of-fact existence to make the burden lighter.

"Amid the clamor of industrialism, the dust of commercialism and the fogs with which the money-god fills all avenues of human experience, the assurance that a spiritual renewal will meet our needs is forgotten. It has no more than a hesitating effect on the life of our times. Souls, in their despair, are forced to shallow content with bodily thrills accompanying ruinous pleasure and bootless recreation.

"Freedom from condemnation by one's conscience, one's God and one's fellow men is only possible through living a spiritual life. There is no lasting satisfaction in anything that the world has to offer.

"The spiritual life is merely our life in company with God's. The life of purity, sympathy, helpfulness and personal nobility.

"Through the moods of reverence, obedience, communion, the life we call spiritual may be cultivated. Its finest interpretation is in some unselfish service. There is no more of mysticism about it than about life of any type within our observation. We are rarely mistaken in naming the fruit of a tree, however, its processes may perplex us, nor do we much err in calling the life spiritual, which has fruitage in its actions, showing the virtues revealed of God."

THE WHITE TEMPLE.

"Some men are possessed by devils and others by devilettes. "Jesus was a heart specialist. Many of us are theological chiropractors.

"We should show our thanksgiving by our thankings. "I have always noticed when people do not agree with me that they are wrong.

"Some people act like they think that God ought to give them a vote of thanks every time they go to church."

"It is hard for the lips to sing a sweet song when the heart is filled with bitterness.

"We are trying too hard to make religion pleasant and financially profitable to people. What the church most needs is people who will do right because it is right.

"The only leper who came back to thank Jesus for his healing was a Samaritan! We get our thanks where we least expect it."

WEST ADAMS METHODIST.

"One day of rest in seven is a provision of mercy. The Sabbath is not an arbitrary institution. The law of the Sabbath is based upon a need in man, God, who made man, knew the needs of His creature.

were King today the world could not be so bad. So to be King Jesus must come again. Only a spectacular Jesus can be a King. And the early Christians found a King of souls so easy they went to prison and to death for Him. And later Christians find Him a disappointment.

"The man one sees is so indifferent an affair he must be in the repair shop half his time. Sleeping, eating and keeping well, resting are a full hemisphere of life. The man one sees is such a body that after 8000 years his biggest problem is to feed and dress himself. He goes quite crazy of the high cost of living. The man one sees has grown so little he can find no way out of his troubles but to kill the other fellow off. The most peaceful nation on earth takes years to quit fighting. Afraid somebody might hurt it, the soul of the world is the world of the soul. Why not live as if it were so? And Jesus is King of souls."

"The early Christians made Jesus their King so vividly the neighbors called it treason. A king of souls they could not understand. Any kind of king must be a foe of Caesar. AVALON GREET'S
SUMMER SEASON

Amphitheater Thronged for First Band Concert.

Many Cups Are Offered for Swimming Experts.

Sportsmen Gather for Tuna Fishing at Island.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
AVALON, June 5.—With flags and bunting fluttering from the pier and from every building of the island city, Catalina today has put on her festival dress for the summer season of 1920, which was formally opened with a grand concert given by Porter's thirty-two-piece band in the Greek amphitheater this afternoon.

The seating capacity of 10,000 persons of the big open-air amphitheater was unable to accommodate the vast audience, and hundreds enjoyed the concert from the hillside and the cool shade of the trees lining the terraces. Director George Milford was given a rousing welcome as he appeared in the grand stand. This is his twenty-fifth year with the famous Catalina Band at the island resort.

Concerts will be given daily both in the afternoon and evening in the amphitheater throughout the season. This evening a jazz orchestra of twelve pieces under direction of W. Widoft made its debut in the big dance pavilion. Following the precedent of older days at Catalina, both concerts and the dancing will be free to the visitors to the Magic Isle all season.

Tomorrow afternoon Commodore W. W. Longfellow and T. W. Sheffield with four assistants will give an exhibition of life-saving in the bay in front of the Hotel El Comodoro. The exhibition will be free to the public and is conducted under the auspices of the Water First Aid Committee of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Red Cross.

Claiming the climate of Southern California to be ideal for the conversion of Catalina into a year-round resort devoted exclusively to outdoor sports, William Wrigley, Jr., wired from Chicago arrangements for an elaborate program of aquatic sports, track meets, tennis and golf tournaments to be held here this summer. Included in the program announced are amateur swimming races for the men, 50, 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,600, 3,200, 6,400, 12,800, 25,600, 51,200, 102,400 and 204,800 yard freestyle to be held in Avalon Bay, with several cups offered to the contestants. A big silver Wrigley cup to be won for three consecutive seasons is offered for the Catalina championship.

Divine for coins, a Catalina feature of former years will be revived this summer. The City of Avalon having passed an ordinance to allow a limited number of youths to participate in the sport. Night aquatic sports have under the colored illumination of Avalon Bay are another feature of the summer season which promises to be a novel attraction on warm evenings.

Sportsmen from all parts of the globe have arrived at the Tuna Club to participate in the famous deep sea fishing of the island waters. Several record catches of tuna weighing from 100 to 121 pounds have been made in the past few days. Today's catch of sportsmen netted eleven yellow fins, six being 100-pound blue-button winners. Equipped with a thirty-six inch searchlight, the S.S. Hercules made its initial trip along the island coast this evening to show visitors the night life of the deep. The big searchlight is of 1,400,000,000 candle power and is believed to be the largest on the Pacific Coast. It is able to sweep the sea with its rays from the island to the mainland. To give visitors a idea of the size and contour of Catalina the S.S. Cabrillo will make a special trip around the island which will be a feature of the summer season's program; special trips will also be made to the lighthouse where barbecue fish dinners will be served to visitors.

NOW COMES RIVERSIDE.

With Claims Designed to Make Boston Humble.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
RIVERSIDE, June 6.—Redlands' claim of having taken from Boston the reputation of being the country's stronghold of culture, because of the Southern California city's alleged lead in library circulation, has inspired local library sharks to brush up on their algebra. Librarian Joseph F. Daniels furnishes the figures without comment, but would probably have to own a handkerchief in the matter of comparison because of the rate at which he has succeeded in acquiring books since he assumed charge of the local library. During a short period of years the number of volumes has increased from 17,000 to 50,000, a few thousands of these being reference volumes which do not circulate.

These 50,000 volumes, by virtue of the county library contract, go into every portion of the county, and have increased from 17,000 to 50,000, a few thousands of these being reference volumes which do not circulate.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Strange Tale Wherein Justice Wins and Tailor Loses.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
SANTA ANA, June 6.—John R. Cox, marrying justice and terror of speeders, is a small man and thereby hangs a tale. Back in 1914 the olive board or something told Cox that clothing costs were to be high in a few years, so when he received a suit of clothes back from the tailor he hung it away and forgot about it—almost.

For four years the suit hung, then the other day Cox prepared to attend church, got it out and put it on. But somehow, the blamed thing didn't fit, the waist line was several inches too long, the legs draped down over his shoes. Cox's hands were hopelessly lost in the sleeves, and the vest was big enough to wrap himself in. He couldn't figure it out, but time was pressing so he wore the suit.

Later he discovered what had happened, found the tailor's trademark inside the coat and the name of Dr. J. E. Paul, local dentist, who is several sizes larger than Cox. Inquiry disclosed that Paul's suit was never returned to him from the cleaners and he was reimbursed for its loss. Cox will keep Paul's lost suit, but it will have to be cut down to fit him and the cleaner pays the bill. Where Cox's original suit that he sent to the cleaners four years ago went to is a mystery.

TO HOLD INQUEST.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
SANTA MONICA, June 6.—Inquest into the cause of the death of Matti and Toffio, two Japanese children, aged, respectively, 6 and 2, will be held tomorrow at the undertaking establishment of Todd's. Their mother, Mrs. K. Ito, who declares that she drowned them, intending to kill herself, is said to be improving at Miss Martin's Sanatorium and will probably attend the inquest.

Mrs. Ito, who lives at 874 South Normandie avenue, Los Angeles, threw her children into the sea Thursday night at 10 o'clock from the end of the Municipal Pier. She afterward jumped in herself, but was rescued by boys who were passing by.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
PASADENA, June 6.—Writing letters to friends on land is the latest method of relieving the ennui and tedium of a long airplane journey for sophisticated aerial travelers.

That is how Mrs. R. E. Hall of New York spent her time on an airplane trip from San Francisco to Pasadena. Mrs. Hall and her husband accompanied M. Ross McAdoo, brother of William Gibbs McAdoo, on his airplane flight from the Golden Gate to Pasadena. Mr. McAdoo, who is spending a vacation from New York in Pasadena, has become quite a devotee of flying.

SITUATION IMPROVED.
The freight situation is much improved, says David Blankenhorn, Pasadena and Los Angeles bond man, who has just returned from an Eastern trip. The tie up, which was the sequel to the sporadic strikes of railroad switchmen and other operating department workers, has now been cleared up, said Mr. Blankenhorn today, and all commodities are moving to market more freely. "Something must be done to finance the railroads," said Mr. Blankenhorn, "for their equipment is in deplorable condition." Business, said Mr. Blankenhorn, is marking time, awaiting the big political conventions, while prices are somewhat lower following the recent efforts of the Federal Reserve Board to curb extravagance in America.

GOES TO CONVENTION.
Robert R. Henley, secretary of the Lions' Club of Pasadena, left for Oakland today to attend the convention of Lions Clubs for California, Oregon and Washington. He will represent the Pasadena club at the convention, which is scheduled for Tuesday.

GRADUATION JUNE 17.
June 17 has been set by Superintendent J. F. West for the graduation exercises of John Muir Intermediate School. There are 130 students in the graduating class. The John Muir is the only intermediate or junior high school, in the Pasadena School District.

ISSUES FIRE WARNING.
Because the burning of rubbish has started three fires in the last twenty-four hours, which necessitated runs by the fire department and threatened property, Fire Chief E. F. Cooper has issued a warning to householders to watch carefully the fires they set to burn rubbish. Nearly every household has a rubbish fire two or three times a week, as local ordinances prescribe that all rubbish other than garbage be burned.

SERVICE MAN WEDS.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

SOUTH PASADENA, June 6.—Miss Lenore Judkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Judkins of 1854 Primrose avenue, was married Thursday, June 3, to Capt. Frank Lynn Austin, in the presence of immediate relatives and friends, Rev. C. W. Jackson of Memorial Baptist Church reading the service. Mrs. Austin is a graduate of the South Pasadena High School and is a teacher in the Throop elementary school of Pasadena. Capt. Austin has received orders to leave at once for Behring Sea and on his return will be stationed at San Diego. He is a son of Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Austin of 298 Arcadia street, Pasadena. During the war Capt. Austin was lieutenant commander of U.S.S. Columbia, conveying the United States troops across the Atlantic, later with the U.S.S. Northern Pacific, plying between New York and Brest, bringing the boys to the home-land.

FIRE WARNING.
LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
REDLANDS, June 6.—Charles Ary, chief of the Redlands Fire Department, has been forced by the number of grass fires in the past few days, to send out warnings to people of the city not to attempt to burn brush at this time without the assistance of firemen. A big brush and grass fire started by a man burning some brush today, came very near damaging an orange grove on Laguna avenue, the fire being stopped just in time. There have been half a dozen grass fires in the past few days, all of them more or less dangerous.

Pomona Girl Dons Male Attire to Hide Freight Train.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
POMONA, June 6.—Prompted by a yearning to return to her old home at Oklahoma City, Pearl Howard, 16 years of age, whose mother recently came to this city to reside, dressed in boy's attire, "bobbed" her hair, boarded a freight train and started on the long journey.

She confided her plans to James Howard, a cousin, 15 years old, and his chum, Charles Miller, 14, who decided to join in the venture and who, with the girl leader, hid away in a carload of lumber on a train leaving Pomona Friday night. Their adventure was ruined, according to the girl's story, when the two boys became hungry early Saturday morning and left the car at Colton, to be taken into custody by the railroad police.

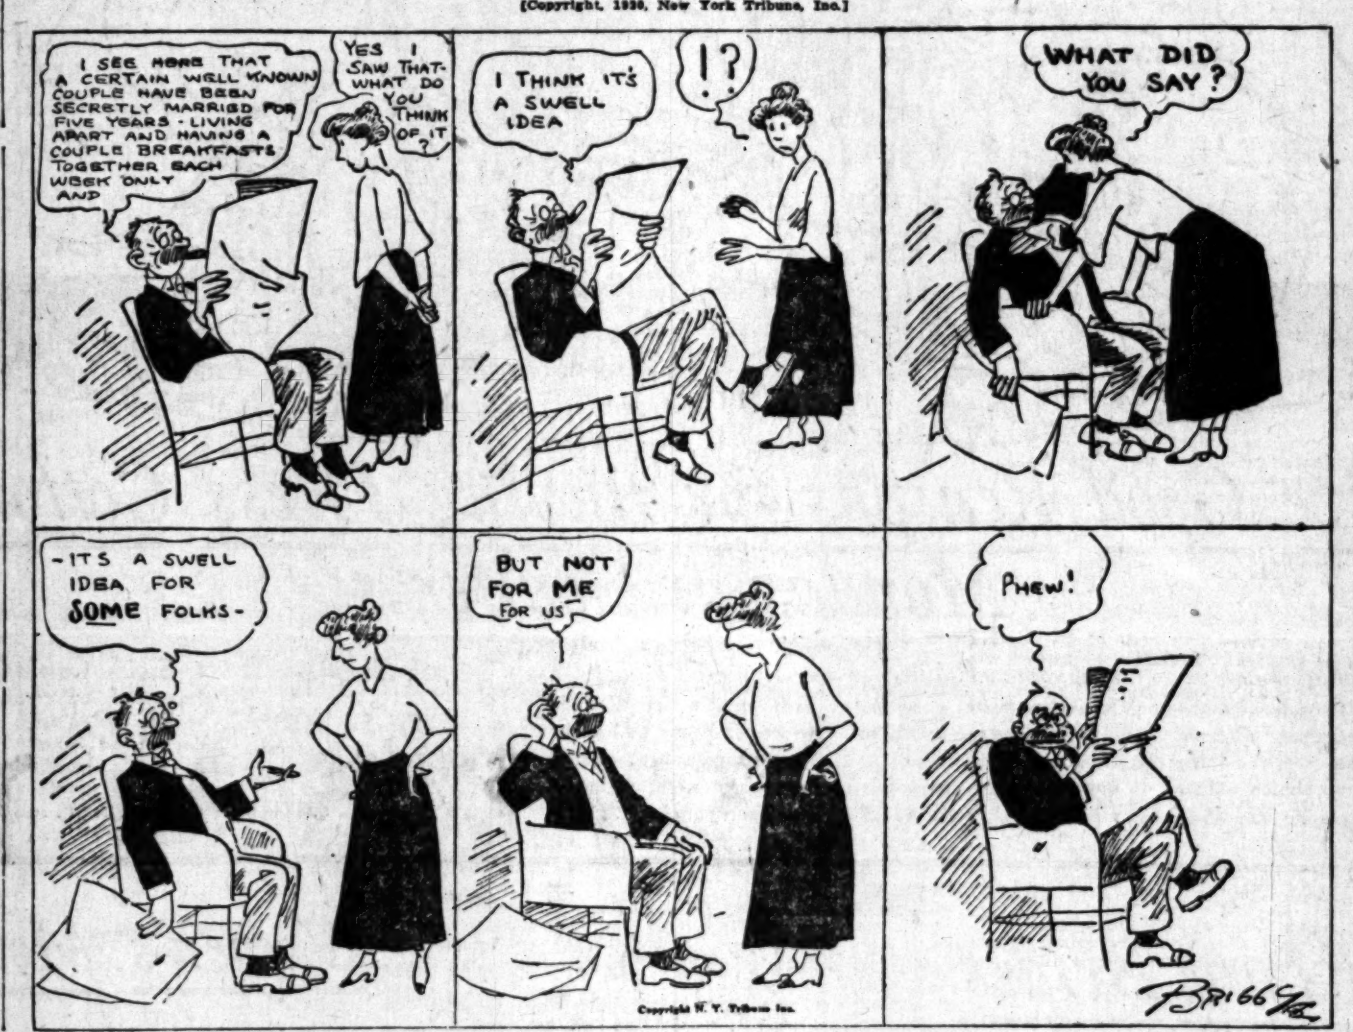

The girl was returned to her home and the boys held by the juvenile authorities at San Bernardino until the details of the escapade have been investigated.

"I'm going back home, just the same," the willful miss asserts, "and the next time I start I'll try it alone. Boys are such bores anyway."

IS TRACTOR VICTIM.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.
PORTERVILLE, June 6.—Jose Martinez, aged 32, a native of Spain, was instantly killed when a tractor, with a disc attachment, which he was driving, struck soft ground and turned over, pinning him beneath it. The accident occurred late Friday afternoon three miles west of the Tagus ranch. Sheriff Court Smith and Coroner Hadley were called to take charge of the body. An inquest is being held this afternoon. Martinez is survived by his wife.

WALLACE :: REID :: TO :: WED :: A :: NURSE.

No, Not in the Films, but Right Out in the Open, See!

THE ANCIENT ORDER OF STAGE-GAZERS HELD ONE OF THEIR MEETINGS AT THE STAGE DOOR THAT NIGHT EVEN IF IT WAS POGGY.

MR. FRANK EGAN, DIRECTOR.

Looking on at "Sick-a-Bed."

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

It is a story of a married man who got an awful crush on a nurse at the Little Theatre and the nurse who took him and won his heart. He pretended to be ill in order to have a deposition of the nurse's name in the picture. The nurse's name is "Sick-a-Bed." You remember the picture. You remember, yes, they're awfully in love, and Wally's going to marry her! Every evening at the Little Theatre, commencing tonight, Wally Reid is going to marry Nurse Kathleen Clifford.

I know what you're going to say. You're going to say, "Why, all that sounds just like the picture plot of 'Sick-a-Bed.'" Well, it's not a picture plot. It's a plot all right, though—the plot of the spoken farce, "Sick-a-Bed," with an all-star cast.

Not a picture, as Bill Wyatt and Bill Chum say every once in a while, breaking into excited capitals when they're afraid of the going to mistake their spoken play for a film.

ALL STARS.

It's a great all-star cast, of course. Wally Reid has been loaned by the Lasky Company once more. William Courtleigh was pulled out of a New York production to come West. King Baggot, handsome picture star; Kathleen Clifford, who you remember as delighting us at the Orpheum last year, has an important role. Otis Harlan, king-pin round comedian of farce in New York; Helen Phillips, Dave Warfield's capital character woman; Vivian Rich, former Fox star; and others, are all in it.

At rehearsal the other night Frank Egan showed he hasn't been idle while his theater was closed, for the stage revealed two of the handsomest sets any local production has seen, the bedroom set being in white enamel, and the walls draped with the largest piece of batique ever made, they say. The living-room set is mahogany, with practicable mahogany doors, handsome rugs, beautiful pictures, etc.

And speaking of pictures, Mr. Egan has a wonderful painting of a nude woman in his private sitting-room up over the theater which he had intended using to decorate the set, only he's afraid if he puts it on the stage nobody will look at his show!

I was down at rehearsal, the other night, and found Director Frank Egan, immaculately clad as ever, living up to his clothes by coaching his players quietly, while the good-looking prompter tried to keep the professional prompter's face as expressionless as a hot water bag, but just couldn't do it, the lines of the play are so funny.

It was the first act and Wally Reid was chauffeuring his wheelchair about and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. with it in such athletic fashion I wonder it stands the strain of being catapulted into and tipped over, and done tricks with. In fact he hopped over the footlights to tell me he wrecked the first one he used at rehearsal.

Kathleen Clifford glitters with her bushels of diamonds as she rehearses the role of the day nurse, in which she promises to make the big hit of her career. Her eyes are as bright as her diamonds and her cheeks like apples, and she declares she's "as nervous as a stuffed shirt," whatever that means; but anyhow she's certainly a perfect ducky little nurse; and if the janitor forgets to come on, as he did at rehearsal the other night, and nurse has to keep on rubbing and rubbing Wally Reid's head, you just ask Wally if he cares!

On rolls Otis Harlan, the prize dumping comedian of New York's Broadway, working his dimples in the role of the smiling doctor. But my, doesn't he get excited later where his little scheme of keeping Wally in bed is discovered!

KUWA IS FIRST.

George Kuwa as the Jap servant doesn't have to learn any dialect nor put on any make-up. Page Wallace Irwin as creator of the next funniest Jap servant in the world, Kuwa is the first.

Just then Helena Phillips ran out and asked about her make-up. Mr. Egan said all right, "Put it on," and Miss Phillips came back to exhibit said make-up, which was a small mustache; but it looked so much like a merely dirty nose, that she decided to do without it.

"Our beautiful romance!" said Vivian Rich, sliding up to a seat on the big basket beside Wally Reid. "Romance!" asks Wally Reid, actually blushing, though I don't know how he managed it. Then Vivian corrected herself. "Our beautiful dream," I mean," she says. Then she has to be pushed into the basket, and declares she just can't do it, her skirt is so short, and, of course, she's going to wear riding clothes or something concealing at the play. She just can't get used to being trundled off in that basket, but promises Mr. Egan she'll try not to giggle too loud tonight when she's rattling around in it.

The second hilariously funny act is called and rehearsed. Somebody is heard chortling in the back of the house—'twas masculine chortles. Investigation reveals the chortler to be no less a person than Roscoe Arbuckle, usually considered laugh-proof.

TO FURTHER EXTEND AIR MAIL SERVICE.

POSTOFFICE CHIEF APPROVES PLAN—AVIATOR IS WED IN A PLANE.

Acting upon the authority of Second Asst. P. M. Gen. Fraser, who is in charge of aerial mail, Assistant Postmaster Foster is working out a plan with G. H. Seward, resident agent of the California Aerial Transport, operating the eight-passenger airplane Avion between here and San Francisco, to extend aerial mail service to all parts of call of the airplane. This includes Bakersfield, Fresno, Stockton and Concord, it was stated yesterday.

George Rinaldo, Orpheum actor, and Hilda Hyde, a pretty little member of another company now playing the same theater, were married in an airplane at Mercury Field yesterday morning by Rev. Henry Mills Cook, assistant pastor of Temple Baptist Church.

Rinaldo was an aviator in the army during the war, and was stationed much of his time at Camp Upton, N. Y. He conceived a great fondness for the air and boasted that every important event in his life should take place therein. His marriage to Miss Hyde was a starter.

TO AID THE HOMELESS.

Last Rehearsal for Auditorium Offering to be Held this Morning.

Last rehearsal for the "Help the Homeless Children Carnival" in Philharmonic (Clune's) Auditorium this evening will be held at 9 a.m. today with Fred Niblo as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Arthur Wright, in charge of the entertainment, stated yesterday, that she is confident the theater will be filled with folk who wish to aid the unfortunate little ones and who want to enjoy a corking good show. The advance sale of seats has been all that was expected.

HOME BURGLARIZED.

W. E. Burns, of 324 South Kenmore street reported to the police early yesterday that his home had been entered through a rear window and that the burglar got away with a valuable diamond ring, other jewelry and a $20 bill. A maid reported that she had seen a short, heavy-set man passing through the rear yard with a sack on his shoulder.

"a million in 1920"

"---clothes that measure up—and fit both taste and pocketbook"

It would seem foolhardy for most tailors to set a goal of "a million dollars' worth of clothes in 1920," but for the "Largest Tailors in the West" it is a simple matter of continuing to give real value in custom tailoring for $30, $35 and $40.

All the many thousands for whom we have made suits are behind us in this huge drive to keep clothing costs down. With their enthusiastic support we have made $223,871.50 worth of clothes in the first four months of 1920.

Men who know the peerless quality, the beautiful workmanship and the excellent fabrics which go into the clothes we make are determined to help us keep our prices down. This we can do by increasing our volume of business which automatically brings down costs.

CUSTOM TAILORED SUITS

are the result of our policy of low overhead costs. And as our business increases and our costs decrease we will be able to offer even greater values. For example: Recently our buyer made a very fortunate purchase of a lot of fine woolsens. In many pieces there is just enough cloth for a suit and an extra pair of pants. We cannot cut our prices further, so we give you the benefit of this fortunate purchase in EXTRA PANTS FREE, with suits made from these materials. These custom tailored trousers are worth at least $15, but you get them FREE.

Come in tomorrow and let us take your measure for a fine suit with EXTRA PANTS FREE. Don't wait until all the best patterns are gone.
